

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An ornamental bunting includes: a length of material folded to form a plurality of pleats, and a securing portion holding the plurality of pleats together at a point away from an end of the length of material so that opposite ends of the pleats can be fanned out relative to the securing portion.